Reactions vary, but O.J. verdict is talk of town

After keeping most of the country riveted to its television sets for more than a month, the Simpson murder trial ended with a thrilling plot twist — all good dramas should end.

And the not guilty verdict, announced at 12:08 p.m. local time Tuesday, had everyone talking.

Madison County Public Defender John Rothman, who took a great personal interest in the case, said he was "satisfied" when the jury voted to acquit Simpson.

"I told people Friday that the jury would return a verdict of not guilty without any trouble," Rothman said. "I don't mean to say I told you so, but the prosecution didn't come close to proving its case beyond a reasonable doubt."

"The jury came to its conclusion a long time ago that Mark Fuhrman was a perjurer and a liar. The prosecution should have known when you get caught manufacturing evidence, you lose."

Assistant State's Attorney Teresa Brown, who prosecutes felony cases, said the prosecution in the Simpson case proved enough to earn a guilty verdict.

"Unfortunately, I think the jury discounted the evidence in this case and based its decision on emotional and racial issues," Brown said. "The decision didn't surprise me though, when it came back so quickly." Granite City Mayor Ron Selph, a former prosecutor, said, "I told students in his law enforcement class at Belleville Area College Monday night that the jury would return with a 'not guilty' verdict."

"I'm not familiar with the system. I think there was enough confusion thrown in the case, and that is the defense's job — that the facts got obscured," Selph said. He

Ambulance district sought

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Officials in Nameoki and Chouteau townships are starting to take a closer look at establishing an ambulance district.

Representatives of the townships, the Alton Fire Department, the Long Lake and Mitchell fire protection districts have been meeting informally with State Reps. Steve Davis and Tom Hollrook, who the townships were expected to form a committee Wednesday evening to consider a referendum necessary to create the district in Nameoki Township Supervisor Ken Davis.

He said Glen Carbon is also considering an ambulance district, but is not included in their discussions.

Chouteau's ambulance service is now provided by the Edwardsville Fire Department.

Officials started talking about forming a district after the Fire Department Ambulance Service sent a letter saying they were pulling out of Madison County because it was losing money.

The company provides service to Pontoon Beach, Venice, Brooklyn and nearby unincorporated areas.

The company later agreed to continue providing service for at least a few more years.

Before the announcement, the company dispatched ambulances from Pontoon Beach and Venice. At this time, it is only dispatching ambulances from Pontoon Beach.

Company president Jere Wilmering said at the time that an ambulance district was the only way to continue service.

On Wednesday he said a district was "absolutely the solution to their problem."

Historically, ambulance companies have come into the area and left a few years later because they could not make a profit.

"They seem to operate for two or three years and then they come back to us and say 'we can't survive here,'" Long Lake Fire Chief Danny Kreher said.

Creating a district would require a referendum because it would be a taxing (See DISTRICT, Page 6A)

Bottle ban approved

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

A ban on glass beer and malt liquor bottles 20 ounces or larger was approved by the Venice City Council Tuesday.

The ban had been pushed by Alderman Vincent Valentine as part of a solution to the litter, loitering and crime problems facing the city.

"This is just the start of something," Valentine said about the ban.

He added that the bottle ordinance was a "stepping stone," and he hoped to see more ordinances dealing with gambling and loitering.

"Now we can concentrate on getting some of the other problems off the streets," he said. "One thing leads to another, you drink beer, then you shoot dice, then the next thing you know, they're arguing and you have a disturbance."

The ban will become effective 10 days after the ordinance is published. To make sure all liquor license holders know about the ban, the city will be sending them notice.

Violators would be subject to fines ranging from $50 to $500 (See BAN, Page 6A) per incident.

"We're hoping that by the middle of October, it should be in effect," Valentine said. "We're going to make sure it's enforced. There's no sense of having something on the books that's not enforced."

Several city and police and fire board members met with Police Chief Dennis Bennett after the council meeting to talk about that and other law enforcement issues.

The ordinance was proposed in February, and is based on a similar ordinance in Alton.

Police stop yields 20 pounds of pot

Lime juice may be used in some air fresheners to cover foul odors, but the aromatic fruit failed to deceive the nose of a Granite City police K-9 Tuesday night.

Police confiscated more than 20 pounds of marijuana from the car of a St. Louis man during a traffic stop on Madison Avenue at 20th Street at 7:25 p.m. Tuesday.

Paul Wayne Mitchell, 36, of the 4100 block of North 20th Street in St. Louis, was charged with unlawful cannabis trafficking, a Class 2 enhanced felony, and was released.

Energy assistance applications open

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Applications for Madison County's low-income energy assistance program are now being taken, but county officials say people may have to wait before receiving any assistance.

Applications for priority households — the elderly, disabled or those with disconnected utilities — began Monday, Oct. 2.

Others may apply beginning Nov. 1.

However, Cheryl Jouett, director of Madison County

Community Development, said no money is available at this time because of budget cuts in Congress.

Federal appropriations for the assistance programs have not been approved yet. Until they are, county officials can take applications, but no money is available, she said.

She said that would especially hurt those whose utilities are not connected, because money won't be available immediately.

Those applying for home energy assistance must provide (See ENERGY, Page 6A)

Transit district buying airport

The Madison County Transit District has reached an agreement for the purchase of Lakeside State Airport, located on Illinois 111 near Horseshoe Lake State Park, for $455,000.

Lakeside is also known as Nichols Field.

Transit Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer said he believes the purchase is the right move for the future.

In April, Transit District Manager Jerry Kane said that once the Lakeside was purchased, the runway would be paved, and additional runways might be put in.

800 locked out at ASF

More than 800 employees of American Steel Foundries' Granite City plant were locked out of work Sunday morning after voting the night before to reject a contract offer from the company.

Steelworkers reporting for work were given a letter from Al Grigalunas, director of human resources for American Steel, advising them that "it would not be in the company's or the union's interest for bargaining unit employees to report for work after the expiration of the collective bargaining agreement at 12:01 a.m. Oct. 1."

Youths face numerous charges

Two St. Louis youths may be facing adult felony charges in both Illinois and Missouri after an early Sunday morning crime spree that allegedly included rape, auto theft, armed robbery and an attempted car jacking.

The two, both 16, were arrested at about 2:40 a.m. Sunday by a Madison police officer who found them as they fled back to Missouri across the McKinley Bridge.

According to police, the spree began in University City, where police responded to a report of a rape in the 6600 block of Delmar at about 1:30 a.m.

Both were being investigated by Venice police for offenses related to a motor vehicle, attempted armed robbery, attempted car jacking and unlawful use of weapons. The driver is also facing charges of leaving the scene of an accident, not wearing a seat belt, attempting to elude police, driving in the wrong lane, operating an uninsured motor vehicle, having no valid drivers' license and driving too fast for conditions.

New City Hall plan advances

Plans for a new Madison City Hall have taken a couple of steps forward.

The City Council last week referred that plan and one to renovate the current city hall to council committees for cost comparisons.

Meanwhile, the city has asked Madison County Community Development for clarification on zoning codes originally proposed for an elevator to be used to renovate a new city hall. On Friday, a county official told the Press-Record Journal the county had agreed to allow the money to be used for either project.

Trailer park license extended

The temporary business license given to Village Green Mobile Home Park while the company cleans up problems has been extended for an additional 30 days.

The Pontoon Beach Village Board also approved allowing occupancy permits for existing mobile homes in the village that meet building codes, and brand new homes brought in to the park.

The temporary license was set to expire on Oct. 8, two days before the next board meeting. The new extension will be until the board's Nov. 7 meeting.

Son testifies against father

The 27-year-old "president" of a company that owned and operated several topless nightclubs in Washington Park and Stages nightclub in Madison testified Tuesday that his father was the real operator and mastermind behind an elaborate illegal gambling operation in the Metro East.

Milan Venezia testified in U.S. District Court in East St. Louis Thursday that his father, Tom Venezia, owner of B&H Vending of Fairmont City and Belleville, supervised weekly collections from tavern owners of thousands of dollars in cash — the profit from video poker machines in taverns throughout the Metro East.

B&H Vending, B&H owner Tom Venezia, 52, Tom Venezia's wife, Erin Grigsby, 23, Tom Venezia's former wife, Sandra Nettles, 36, and Alan Morris, 63, of Caweinville are on trial on federal charges of racketeering, conspiracy to commit racketeering, running an illegal gambling business, obstruction of local law enforcement with the intent to facilitate an illegal gambling business, money laundering and conspiracy to defraud the Internal Revenue Service.

Police, clerk differ on liquor sale

Clerk testifies driver's license showed man to be 21

By Bob Slatte
Staff writer

Granite City police officers and a convenience store clerk accused of selling beer to a minor July 29 gave conflicting accounts of the incident during a liquor hearing Tuesday.

Patrolman David Atchison testified Tuesday that convenience store clerk had admitted to him that she failed to ask the man for identification before selling him a 12-pack of beer.

Atchison said he stopped a 1988 Oldsmobile driven by the man who purchased the beer for a traffic violation after watching the man walk out of the Quick Shop with a 12-pack at about 9:30 p.m. July 29. He said the driver produced a driver's license with the name "Mike" and age 21, based on it.

But Tina Turner, 30, of Pontoon Beach, a clerk at the C&H Phillips #6 Quick Shop located at West Pontoon Road and Missouri Avenue, told Mayor Ron Saltz who was seated in the courtroom that she demanded to see an identification card from a 20-year-old Granite City man before selling him the beer. She said he showed her a state identification card similar to a driver's license — with a March 1974 birth date, making him 21 at the time of the sale.

Police said they searched the man but found no other identification card in his possession. They said they did not search his girlfriend, who was seated next to him in the car.

The man who purchased the beer was unavailable to testify Tuesday. He will be available a deposition and his testimony will be considered, but Slatte makes a decision in case the man does not appear.

Both Atchison and Patrolman Tim Salto, who assisted Atchison on the traffic stop, testified that Turner sat at the police station that the 20-year-old had given her trouble before when she refused to sell him beer.

Turner testified Tuesday that the man had tried unsuccessfully to buy beer when she was working there most other times since March, and that he had called her a name on at least one occasion when she refused.

But, she said, this time the man bragged that he was 21 years old and displayed the identification card with a March birth date. Under cross examination by Assistant City Attorney Brian Konzen, Turner said she did not think it strange or suspicious that the birth date on the man's license and the card would have made him 21 on the prior occasions when he was refused service.

"It didn't cross my mind," Turner said. Turner has been charged criminally with selling alcohol to minors. She has pleaded not guilty and is awaiting trial.

Alice Perkins, 41, also an employee of the Quick Shop, testified that it is store policy to request identification from all people who purchase alcohol if they appear to be less than 30 years old.

The alleged incident is the seventh year in which a liquor license holder has been brought to a hearing for selling to a minor.

Possible punishments include a fine, suspension of the liquor license, or revocation of the license.

Herman Williams is the owner of the Quick Shop.

added that he thinks that the television camera and coverage and atmosphere of the trial helped to encourage mention from the facets and evidence.

Reaction among other area residents was mixed. Many of those interviewed said they believe Simpson actually committed the crimes; others felt he did not.

Several — like Robert Smith of Granite City — were of the opinion that the jury reached the only decision it could, given the evidence.

"I think the defense put a reasonable doubt in the jury's mind," Smith said.

While Rekowski and Brown disagreed on the outcome of the case, both agreed the trial is likely to have long-term effects on the criminal justice system.

"I think more than anything else, it proves the facts that police lie," Rekowski said.

"I think the jury went twice before they sat down in the belief of everything a police officer says on the witness stand."

Brown said she feels the case will have more of a negative effect.

"This case made the legal system look bad, and the problem is that the case isn't representative of what we see in a criminal trial is really like."

"This is a caricature of a trial," Rekowski said.

"Everything is exaggerated and a little bit bigger than it is in real life."

"I hope jurors in the trials we have in the future don't expect (defense attorneys) to put witnesses on the stand for four or five days at a time."

While O.J. Simpson will go free, the real tragedy of the case may be that Nicole Brown and Ronald Goldman's killers may never come to justice.

"When the prosecution

found on O.J. that they put all their cards in one basket," Rekowski said. "Now it's too late to go back to the crime scene and start over again."

Raymond Fisher of Granite City said he stuck by the football star from the beginning.

"I never thought O.J. did it, so I was happy with the verdict. The police should never have had the evidence," Fisher said.

Denise Canna was somewhat mysterious in her analysis.

"I don't think O.J. did it. But he did it, and he did it," she said.

Antonio Henderson's reaction summed up a popular emotion.

"I just glad it is all over," he said.

Man hurt seriously in motorcycle crash

By Bob Slatte
Staff writer

A 39-year-old Granite City man was seriously injured Saturday night when his motorcycle struck a utility pole and he was thrown over a six-foot fence in Granite City.

Montie L. White was listed in critical and unstable condition Wednesday at St. Elizabeth University Medical Center.

Whitt, of the 3100 block of Highland Park Drive in Granite City, was southbound in the 2100 block of Monroe Street approaching 21st Street — where Monroe Street ends at a "T" intersection at about 8:45 p.m. Saturday when he failed to stop his 1989 Harley Davidson motorcycle, a stop sign at 21st Street, continued through the intersection and crashed into a utility pole and fence, according to a police report.

Whitt was thrown over the six-foot-tall chain-link and barbed-wire fence and landed on the opposite side of the fence, the report states.

Skid marks on the pavement next to the curb measured only 10 to 14 inches long, the report states.

A man who was riding a different motorcycle with Whitt said it appeared as if the brakes on Whitt's cycle did not function properly.

Whitt was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center by Granite City fire department ambulance.

He was later transferred to St. Louis University Medical Center, officials said.

No talks slated at American Steel

By Bob State
Staff writer

Steelworkers from American Steel Foundries formed long lines at the Granite City unemployment office this week.

More than 800 workers were locked out of the facility on Niedringhaus Avenue Sunday after they failed to ratify a new contract agreement on Saturday.

Ed Self, grievance committee chairman for United Steelworkers of America Local #1063, said Wednesday afternoon that no talks have been scheduled between negotiators for the union and the company.

"We're trying to set up a meeting even as we speak," Self said. "But we're not having any luck."

The contract covering steelworkers at American Steel expired at midnight Saturday. Although Self said no strike vote was taken and steelworkers had hoped to work while negotiations continued, the company has said no work will be scheduled until a new contract is approved.

Union machinists, patternmakers and electricians continue to work at the plant.

"The company is still saying we're on strike, but that's just not true," Self said.

"I think the workers would be picketing in front of the facility. Although workers were milling around the plant entrance Monday and Tuesday, Self has asked them not to show up at the plant site."

"All of us, the steelworkers, electricians and everyone involved to go ahead and work. We know what the economy is and we want them to go ahead and work, just as we want to work," Self said.

Transit district will receive $7.26 million

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

The Madison County Transit District will receive $7.26 million in federal funds to pay for a new transfer station at 121 Edwardsville and receive approximately 100 handicapped-accessible vehicles.

U.S. Reps. Dick Durbin, D-Springfield, and Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, announced the funding from the U.S. Department of Transportation last week.

The $7.2 million was included in the fiscal year 1996 and 1997 transportation appropriations bills. The 1996 bill provides $1.632 million for the construction of the transfer station, $3.74 million to replace 23 buses and $128,000 in related capital costs. The 1997 bill provides $1.76 million for an additional 10 buses.

All are equipped with lifts.

"This is going to provide better, more convenient bus service to the residents of Madison County," Costello said. "With this federal support, we hope to improve our regional transportation network."

Madison County Board and Transit District Chairman Nelson Hagnauer said the district had been told the money was in the budget, but because of the budgetary problems in Washington, D.C., they were uncertain if the money would be appropriated.

Costello, a senior member of the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, and Durbin, the highest ranking Democrat on the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation, worked together to get the funds on the transportation bills.

The transfer center and the replacement buses will help Madison County continue to improve its transportation service, Durbin said. "Whether it's Metrolink and light rail, or buses equipped for persons with disabilities, Madison County knows how important transportation is to economic development. Congressman Costello, I will keep working to make sure Madison County moves forward."

In April the Transit District purchased the Cassens & Sons car dealership at 121 Hillsboro Street in Edwardsville. The district paid $850,000 for the property, and gave the dealership 18 months to find a new location.

Plans to move the dealership to Glen Carbon were recently announced.

A transfer station similar to the one in Granite City is planned. The district is also planning a similar station in Collinsville, but has not found a location yet.

Paroles and the media

State Rep. Jay Hoffman, a regular critic of the Illinois approach to crime and punishment, recently raised the disturbing suggestion that revocation of parole is often driven by media interest in individual cases.

Hoffman has repeatedly complained that the state Corrections Department is not aggressive enough in returning felons to prison when they commit crimes while out on parole.

He recently cited an internal Corrections Department memo that he claimed applied "media sensitivity" as one of the factors the Corrections Department would use in determining whether an offender's parole should be revoked for crimes beyond a handful the memo identified as requiring automatic revocation.

Hoffman also alleged that in one case a parolee was arrested and released on bond seven times but was not returned to prison until after a reporter inquired about the case.

He said the Corrections Department was using a standard that, "If the media is going to blast us, we'll revoke the parole, otherwise the parolee remains."

Corrections Department officials, however, respond that Hoffman had misrepresented the department's position. Corrections spokesman Nic Howell said the memo's concern with media sensitivity to parolees was "so I can be prepared to respond to media inquiries."

Howell added, "Getting your story in the newspaper is not going to get you sent back to prison."

We're not certain which of the conflicting interpretations of the "media sensitivity" is most accurate — Hoffman the critic's or Howell the Corrections spokesman's — but we know that the media has no wish to be cast in the role of determining criminal punishment by degree of news coverage.

We agree with Hoffman's contention that "press clippings should not determine the criminal policy of this state" in individual cases and urge the Corrections Department to make it clear to its employees and the public that that is not the case.

Friends make it all worthwhile

A golden October afternoon, the flame of maple at the edge of the peaceful, sloping pasture just past the back stretch. A fast track, fifth race coming up.

Ed has left alone to pedal his picks for the upcoming race, while he goes down the line to pick up a tip or two from friends from home. Leon and Millie Gandy, former Ed Williams Lloyd and Reba Oster. I'm debating between Numbers 3 and 5, neither of them favorites at the moment.

Ed is in study, suddenly I hear the call to the post, look up to see the horses coming onto the track, realize I've got to make a choice. Number 3 is the favorite to win, windows and realin I really need the Ladies Room. I plunk down my money, ask for a win ticket on No. 5 and race to the post.

My heart sinks. I realize I bet the wrong horse. No big deal, I'll get out to the window and bet No. 3 — and never tell soul.

Back in my seat for the race, Ed is still talking to our friends, and I watch alone as, thundering down the home stretch Numbers 3 and 5, incrementally closer, neck to neck to the wire, and No. 5 takes it by a nose. And I've won $86-and-change for a bet I didn't intend to make.

Ed asks the question: "Did you have it?"

I guffaw motion back.

"Yes!" and the couple sitting next to me, seeing my excitement, commentate me. A few seconds later, I confide in them the circumstances of my accidental win and the woman says, "Whatever you do, don't tell your husband. Let him think you still have a great handicapper."

Thus a number of years ago (was it 12, 13?) I first met Art and Nancy Burke of Oak Brook, Ill.

In the dining room of The Springs, later that evening, the Burkes stopped by our table to congratulate me again and meet Ed. We talked a bit, then Ed and, following dinner, adjourned to the bar where we really got acquainted — and closed the place down.

During that evening's conversation, we discovered we had a number of things in common. Our love of the

Carol Clarkson

Kentucky Bluegrass in general, and Keeneland track in particular.

Nancy had spent her freshman college year at McMurtry College in my home town before transferring to the U. of I., where, if memory serves, she met Art. Art, has a seat on the Churchill Board of Trustee and is an enthusiastic admirer of my favorite cousin, Roger Gray, a professor of agro-economics at Stanford, who served as an advisor to the Chicago Board of Trade for a number of years.

We had lots to talk about. We were of the same generation, peers.

Ordinarily, this would have been the end of it; a pleasant evening resulting from a chance meeting. I'm not sure why, but it didn't work that way with the Burkes.

Three years later, again in Lexington, we missed each other, thanks to misinformation given to them by a desk clerk at the Campbell House Hotel. They were staying there overnight; we were down for the track, but they were told we weren't registered. Bad luck.

But we've remained to stay in touch over the intervening years and I like to think it's because, like me, they believe that in this uncertain life, we can't ever have too many friends. And we're friends now, we share tastes.

I learned recently from their daughters, Joyce and Judy, that Art and Nancy are nearing their 50th year of weddedness and will be doing a lot of "remembering when."

I hope they'll remember that sunny autumn at Keeneland, as do I, when we graciously allowed them to add a couple of links to their circle of friends.

Come November, we won't be with them in Oak Brook to toast their enduring friendship, but I'll be there, we'll be thinking of them. And we'll be hoping for one more afternoon together at the track, if not Keeneland, maybe Arlington?

Shriners Hospitals help children

Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children again this fall are raising money by selling special newspaper editions. The money raised will be directed to fund free hospital treatment for youngsters, from infancy to their 18th birthday. There are many Shriners hospitals and cash registers at any of the 22 locations.

The 19 Shriners orthopedic hospitals are located in St. Louis, Chicago, Honolulu, Houston, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Portland, Ore., Grand Rapids, Mich., Toledo, Fla., Erie, Pa., Lexington, Ky., Shreveport, La. (the first to open), Spokane, Wash., Springfield, Mass., Montreal, Canada; and Mexico City, Mexico.

They serve orthopedic patients. In addition, the Chicago, Philadelphia and San Francisco hospitals are rehabilitation centers for patients with spinal-cord injuries.

Three other centers — in Boston, Cincinnati and Galveston, Texas — concentrate on the care of burn injuries.

Children are eligible if, in the opinion of the hospital's board and chief of staff, there is a reasonable chance that treatment would benefit the child and if treatment at another facility would place a financial burden on the family.

The hospitals are open to all youngsters regardless of race, religion or relationship to a Shiner.

There is never a charge to a patient, parent or any third party for any of the medical or surgical treatments and services.

The local newspaper sales campaign is conducted by Ainaad Temple, based in St. Louis. There are 6,860 Shrine members in southern Illinois.

Ronald D. Williams, Ainaad potestate, said this fall, "Shriners Hospitals do not derive funds from insurance or governments. They are supported entirely by donations, gifts, fund-raisers, wills and bequests."

"The budget for all 22 hospitals is over $1 million per day, so it takes a lot of fund-raisers to continue this free medical care.

"For the public's help, the Shriners have won five American Hospital Association (AHA) Novis Awards for 1995.

The program seeks to better serve children with special health problems, to bring them to care, through its coordination of care services, referrals and information exchange with other providers.

Novis Awards recognize collaborative projects in hospitals and health systems working toward AHA's vision of well-constructed, community-centered health-care delivery system.

(Children's Health Care Options Improved through Cooperative Efforts and Services), the Shriners have won three five American Hospital Association (AHA) Novis Awards for 1995.

Novis Awards recognize collaborative projects in hospitals and health systems working toward AHA's vision of well-constructed, community-centered health-care delivery system.

Nationally, more than 500,000 children have been helped by the Shriners since 1922.

Many children from Illinois have been treated at the St. Louis, Chicago and Cincinnati burn center.

Often, volunteers provide free transportation from the homes to the clinics.

Letters to the editor

High school changes rules

TO THE EDITOR:

I read a letter several weeks ago in your (newspaper) about the high school changes of parents not being there for their children and expecting the school or teachers to be there.

My daughter, who this year, was in ninth grade. She is in her junior year and we decided other things were important. There have been teachers in the past that have made it plain that they care about their students and she has had teachers that go out of their way to help.

The same stands for parents. There are some who help their children and other couldn't care less.

Homecoming for Granite City High School is Oct. 14. It seems there is a rule that non-Green students are not allowed to even speak with them in the past. This wasn't announced until one day before the tickets went on sale. The businesses didn't become aware of this until the day before to receive a therapeutic relaxation massage? Let's not be quick to judge.

When the Idle Hour Spa was closed, there was also another massage parlor that did operate legally. I applaud the Granite City Police for closing the spa that operated in 1992 without a license and unproperly affiliated.

Now, if we could only get the city to have the signs removed.

Certified massage practitioners adhere to strict ethics and standards of professional conduct. Mr. Ellsworth has followed the guidelines for opening this business and should be allowed to do so. He is offering a service that many local consumers would appreciate and support.

Give massage parlor a chance

TO THE EDITOR:

Please don't run another news business to another town. I sure Mr. (Evan) Ellsworth could open his "Relaxation Station" elsewhere, but why does he have to move to Granite City a good place to be? I work downtown and work out at the local YMCA, so the location works for me. Why should any of us have to travel to another city to receive a therapeutic relaxation massage? Let's not be quick to judge.

School board candidates will speak tonight

Candidates for the Granite City School Board will be guest speakers at the Prather PTA meeting.

Each candidate will be given five minutes to speak. A question-and-answer period will follow.

The meeting is open to the public.

It is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Prather cafeteria.

•Ban

Alton police have said their ban has been effective.

Bob Boothman, owner of Bob's Red Fox Grocery, said he is among those who supports the ban.

"This glass bottle thing is going to be a help to the community," he said.

Boothman said he would rather deal with smaller bottles and cans.

"You throw an aluminum can down and it's gone in five minutes," he said. "But a bottle will sit there until a car drives over it."

Other liquor license holders could not be reached for comment.

•Tax

"Riff-ruff" out of the city.

Alderman Michael Vrabec, chairman of the committee, said city officials are having a difficult time keeping track of renters.

"That is a big problem," he said. "The landlords keep the utility bills in their name and move people in and out."

In addition to the license fee, the ordinance would also require the landlord to identify the names of people living in the rental properties.

Alderman Harvey Haynes said that will allow the city to control the number of people in the unit.

Several aldermen complained during the meeting that some rental properties are occupied by a dozen or more people.

The proposed ordinance would also allow the building inspector to set the maximum number of people allowed to live at a residence, Haynes said.

Vrabec noted that the proposed ordinance would affect many people, including several aldermen.

"There is no doubt this will anger some people," he said.

Alderman Ralph Miller, a member of the committee, complained that he was allowing one of his sons to live in properties to his credit, but was not charging rent.

After discussion, the committee decided to add a section allowing an abatement of the license fee in such cases. That would require a $5 application fee.

Spengler said he would try to have the ordinance ready for next week's council meeting, but might not be able to because he has an upcoming trial.

District

district. The earliest it could be on the regular ballot would be in the spring.

The district could either contract with a private company or provide its own ambulance service.

The minimum tax rate for an ambulance district would be 30 cents per $100 assessed value. That would mean the owner of a home assessed at $30,000 would pay $90 per year.

That money would be used to partially subsidize ambulance service within the district.

Wolmering said the average cost of an ambulance run is about $400.

One of the biggest problems with providing service is nonpayment, he said.

In Madison County he said the nonpayment rate is approximately 52 percent.

"It's terrible," he said.

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Illinois law recognizes the legal theory of unjust enrichment. This theory is founded on the principle that no one should unjustly enrich himself at another's expense.

In one recent case, the defendant was an employee of a video store until she was terminated on October 5, 1984. As a general policy, employees were allowed to take video tapes home for personal use without checking the tapes out or paying a rental fee. On the day that she was terminated, she had placed eight video tapes in her car. She took the tapes home and placed them in a storage closet.

A number of weeks later, she discovered the tapes while cleaning. She later testified that she never viewed the tapes while they were in her possession. She returned the video tapes to the plaintiff's store approximately two months after her termination.

The plaintiff sued her for $549, which is the amount she would have owed if she had rented the tapes for the two months she kept them. The trial court found that an implied contract existed between the parties and that the defendant owned a rental fee for each day she retained the tapes. The defendant appealed on appeal that the store owner failed to show that she derived any benefit from her possession of the tapes, and that therefore there was no unjust enrichment to her.

The Appellate Court found that the defendant did derive a benefit from the video tapes, and that therefore an implied contract existed between her and that video store. The tapes were available for her use. The reviewing court, however, modified the amount of the damage award.

The court felt that the defendant's family had never watched the video tapes. Furthermore, there was no evidence that it lost money because it was unable to rent the tapes to a paying customer. Under these circumstances, the appellate court found that the defendant was enriched only to the extent of one day's rental fee for each of the tapes in her possession. Therefore, the court reduced the award from $549 to $9.

from the Drug Enforcement Administration and the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois converged on a silver 1987 Ford Thunderbird that was later discovered to contain 20 pounds of marijuana inside a fruit container in the trunk.

The undercover unit obtained information that the car would be traveling through Granite City Tuesday evening, Ruebhausen said. Federal and MEG agents were informed and followed the Thunderbird from the McKinley Bridge to 20th and Madison Avenue, a route states.

When the car stopped at a traffic light, a Granite City officer effected a traffic stop. The officer reported seeing a partially smoked hand-rolled cigarette on the console and a full-sized hand-rolled cigarette next to the gear shift.

Mitchell told the officer that the cigarettes were jointed and gave police permission to search the vehicle, the report states.

A box that appeared to contain "Pauline Persian Seedless Limes" was found in the trunk, but under the top row of limes were plastic bags separating the fruit from four bundles of pot, weighing a total of 20 pounds, wrapped in brown paper and plastic, the report states.

After arresting Mitchell, police sought and received a search warrant at the federal courthouse in St. Louis, police said.

A search of Mitchell's house turned up five additional pounds of marijuana, $50 cash, a 45-caliber semi-automatic handgun and scales and other paraphernalia, Ruebhausen said.

Free mental health tests are offered

The Behavioral Health System of St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City is offering a test that could save your life.

Mental health professionals will offer local residents the opportunity to learn about the signs and symptoms of depression and to participate in a free screening as part of National Depression Screening Day, from 6 to 8 p.m. tonight, Thursday, in the Ketteler Gym.

Participants at the screening will hear a talk on the causes and symptoms of depression from Dr. Kenneth Sonnenchein, the medical director for Behavioral Health System, who will describe the symptoms of depression in children, adolescents and adults.

Individuals will complete an anonymous written screening test and complete and leave the opportunity to discuss the results with mental health professionals in a confidential manner.

Depression strikes more than 17 million Americans each year, according to the National Institute of Mental Health. Fewer than half seek treatment, even though treatment can help 80 percent of those affected.

National Depression Screening Day is held each year during Mental Illness Awareness Week and was developed by Douglas J. Jordon, Howard Johnson Jr. Last year, more than 82,000 people attended screenings at 2,000 sites nationwide.

National Depression Screening day will offer a free written self-test and screening for depression.

There will be a presentation from 6:30 to 7 p.m. on depression, including a film and lecture with a question-and-answer session with a physician.

Behavioral Health System staff will meet with those in attendance individually to discuss the score of their self-test and to offer guidance for treatment if needed.

Call the Behavioral Health System Resource Center at 788-3888 for reservations or for more information.

LOCAL NEWS

Granite City Press-Record, October 5, 1995—11A

Obituaries

Judith Bradley

Judith E. (Schaefer) Bradley, 37, of Joppa, Ill., died at 10:02 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 3, 1995, at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis, where she had been admitted in the emergency room at St. Elizabeth Medical Center. She was born Sept. 14, 1958, in Granite City, Ill., and had been a resident for 20 years. She had moved to Joppa 13 years ago.

Survivors include her husband, Wendell Bradley; her parents, Walter and Augustine (Gatz) Schaefer of Granite City; two brothers, Michael and William Schaefer of Carbondale, Ill.; and one sister, Barbara Sprink of Granite City.

Services were to be held at 11 a.m. today, Thursday, at Aikins-Farmer Funeral Home in Metropolis. Burial will be in Massac Memorial Cemetery in Metropolis.

Local arrangements were handled by Irwin Chapel in Granite City.

Patricia Newell

Patricia L. Messerly, 56, of Madison, died at 8:51 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 3, 1995, at Elwood Health Care Center in Maryville. She was born Jan. 14, 1939, in Elwood, Ill., and had been a resident of Madison for 20 years.

Messerly was a mold operator with Plastics and Moldings Company for 13 years prior to her retirement; she was the mother of four.

Survivors include her son, Edward Schenk of Madison; three daughters, Linda, Debbie and Debra Newell, all of Madison; three sons, Robert Messerly of Oakville, Mo., Giles and William Messerly of Oceanside, Calif.; and one granddaughter. She had four granddaughters; and five great-grandchildren.

Oh Say, Can You Be Seen?

How often have you had to brake suddenly with another driver right on your tail? Your eyes don't see the rearview mirror, so he'll see your brake lights in time.

But what if your brake lights aren't working properly? There's better than a 50/50 chance they're NOT, according to figures from a survey by American Automobile Club of Cleveland, OH. They found 55% of vehicles checked had brake lights that needed some kind of repairs. This was by far the most prevalent mechanical discrepancy found during a Car Care Clinic.

Bob Knop, manager of the Club's Apparatus and Repair Department, which conducts the clinics, says most problems were found with the brake light, generally because of a burned out bulb.

Our Subconscious Response to Lighting

"We've grown to depend on lighting to signal our intentions," says Janine Sine, Manager for the G.E. Automotive Lighting Division. "We respond almost subconsciously to fellow motorists' turn signals, brake lights or emergency flashers. It's a form of communication as vital to driving as road signs and center lane marking. When they're missing we're unaware of them and we're lost."

Another common lighting problem, according to Sine, is found on vehicles with four light systems with separate units for high and low beams. Because the high beam lamps are replaced less often the lens is subjected to years of abuse from pebbles and other road debris. Eventually hair-line cracks develop and moisture works its way inside, corroding the reflector. The unit may appear to be working OK but it is not putting out as much light as it should.

Lights on for Safety

"Some day it may be widespread practice in the U.S., as it is in Canada and Sweden, that headlights be turned on whenever the car is driven. It's a proven safety measure and already is the law in the U.S. on two wheeled vehicles where lights automatically turn on with the ignition switch. Obviously, they are more visible to other drivers," says Sine.

"An Avia traveler safety study showed vehicles with daytime running lights (DRL) had a better accident record than vehicles not so equipped."

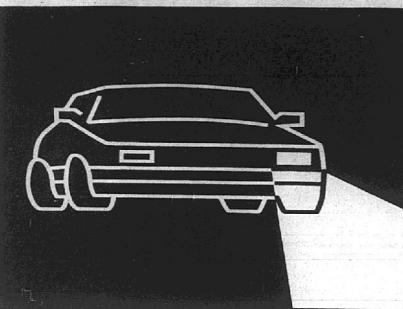

But lights are worthless if they are not working, Sine emphasizes. All exterior lights should be checked periodically, not only for burned out bulbs and flashers but also for poor illumination of headlamps due to damaged reflectors.

The best way to check your system is to have one person turn on the lights, the emergency flashers and turn signals and apply the brakes while someone else walks around the vehicle to see that everything is working.

It's also a good habit during every gas fill-up to check for dirt (dirt) on all lenses, front and rear. To help maintain cleanliness you can apply a glass treatment such as "RAIN X" to help repel rain, sleet, and snow.

Proper Headlight Aim Is Important

At one time or another most of us have been blinded by the glare of oncoming headlights. You flash your high beams to signal the oncoming driver to dim his lights. He responds by turning on his high beams, indicating it was his low beams that had been blinding you. They were aimed too high.

Are you sure your headlights are not blinding others? Here, from G.E., is the recommended way to check headlight aim.

1) Put your car on a 35-40 foot stretch of flat or evenly paved pavement such as a driveway facing a wall or garage door.

2) Shine your low beams on the door from 2 to 3 feet away and outline the bright spots on the outside of a pencil or tape.

3) Back the car up about 25 feet from the door. The top of the low beams should shine no higher than the top of the marks on the door or lower than the center of the marked circle. If your vehicle has four headlights the center of the high beam (the inner or lower two lights) should align with the top of the low beam marks. If you have only two headlights, the high beams are automatically aimed when you aim the low beams.

For most accurate aiming take your vehicle to a professional. If, on the other hand, you're a "do-it-yourselfer," follow these instructions from G.E.:

Remove the outer trim for access to the adjustment screws. To raise the beam turn the top adjustment screw clockwise; counter clockwise to lower the beam. Turn the side adjustment screw clockwise to move the beam to the right and counter-clockwise to move it to the left.

Brace each beam into its final position by turning the adjusting screw clockwise so the headlamp will be held against its tension springs when the operation is completed.

If your lights continue to be out of adjustment, consult a service technician.

Running On Empty: Low Fuel Levels Cause Fuel Line Problems

Rumford, RI -- In this no-time-for-anything world, most everyone pushes the limits. If you're among those pushing the limits, you'll notice gauge and frequently running your car on empty, you may be doing your engine serious harm according to AlliedSignal's FRAM brand filtration experts.

"In the winter, motorists seem to pay closer attention to fuel levels because they fear that fuel lines will freeze," says Bob Pond, AlliedSignal's manager for filter products. "However, while the lines may freeze when a near-empty gas tank allows condensation to form, this moisture buildup doesn't cause problems only in the winter. At all times, the presence of too much water in the fuel system can present problems."

Leaving your gas tank near empty night after night will cause excess condensation to buildup and the inside of your gas tank can corrode. Rust flakes will accumulate and prematurely clog the fuel filter, which, given the difficult access to fuel filters in most cars, can be hard to replace.

While the final filter will remove some moisture buildup, if there is too much water for the filter to handle, the fuel injectors and other components within the fuel system can become corroded.

And, according to Pond, because the cause and effect relationship between poor engine performance and water in the fuel system takes time to develop, it is not easily recognizable. "You could end up spending too much time and money having a technician diagnose the problem."

If you continually run on—or at—near empty, this forces rust or other particles into the fuel line and will clog the fuel filter, causing poor engine performance.

Fortunately, late model cars have sophisticated computers that compensate for problems. If the fuel filter becomes clogged with contaminants, fuel pressure will drop and the engine will usually shut down before more serious damage occurs. When and where the car stalls out, perhaps a deserted stretch of highway—should be enough to convince drivers not to drive through gasoline nearly empty.

"With older cars, don't have a computer to tell the engine to shut down, you will notice that the car will become sluggish and perhaps surge now and then," says Pond. "Either way, the clogged filter must be replaced, and the gas tank will need to be repaired or replaced."

To avoid these annoying problems:

- If you continually run on—or at—near empty, this forces rust or
- or wedged frame, doors, hood and trunk that have gaps or do not close properly, paint/color is not uniform, ripples in the metal. You'll have to get it on a lift for a full inspection, but it's worth the trouble.
- STEERING AND SUSPENSION - Too much play in the steering may mean worn parts; that's bad and usually expensive news. A car's suspension system refers to its shocks and/or struts. If this system is poorly maintained because it literally "suspends" your car over its four wheels, the car will be in bad shape; you could lose the ability to steer, the tires begin to skip, your car becomes less stable and bumpy. Your car expert friend lens, Pond advises keeping the gas tank topped off or at least more than half full, particularly in the fall. If your fuel filter becomes clogged before the manufacturer's suggested change interval, then you may have a corrosion problem in your fuel tank.

Check them both visually and with a test drive. The car should run quietly and smoothly. If it is a manual, the gears should shift easily.

EXHAUST: That hot-rod noise may sound cool, but it could mean a leak in one of several places. If the leak is in the catalytic converter, you could possibly fail a motor-vehicle inspection.

BELTS AND Hoses: Worn belts and hoses can be good indicators of how the previous owner(s) maintained the car. If these items are in bad shape, beware.

ENGINE AND TRANSMISSION:

Once the engine powers the car, the transmission "translates" this power to the wheels; these two systems are important players.

Check them both visually and with a test drive. The car should run quietly and smoothly. If it is a manual, the gears should shift easily.

TIRES: Check the tread on all five tire spares makes (rival) tires. Worn treads mean you'll soon be investing in new tires. Tires that have worn unevenly indicate potential alignment problems.

Gentle As You Go

Take it easy on railroad crossings or rough road surfaces. Slow down first, not when you're on top of the obstruction. Severe braking puts extra stress on braking and suspension parts. A wheel that rolls over an obstruction suffers less trauma than one that strikes it with brakes applied.

Smoother Running Engines Through Proper Spark Plug Installation

Rumford, RI - Their looks haven't changed much since before World War II and they continue to operate faithfully for thousands of miles. And maybe, says Gary Donahue, lead trainer for AlliedSignal's Autonite electronics, it's because spark plugs are so dependable that they don't get the attention they really deserve.

Donahue says there's no need for spark plug neglect, since in most cars, installing new spark plugs is one of the few maintenance/tune-up jobs that most everyday car owners can perform at home.

"Neglecting your spark plugs by leaving them in too long or by skipping installation steps can cause lost fuel mileage, rough running, and engine damage," says Donahue. "By following a few simple rules, you can install spark plugs like a pro."

The Gap Gap

Never install a spark plug without first checking its gap, says Donahue, referring to the clearance between the electrodes at the firing end of the plug. He explains that though spark plug gaps are set at the factory, this adjustment is often knocked out of kilter during shipping and handling.

"Even if you could count on the plug's being at the factory setting when it comes out of the box, you want to make sure the setting is the correct one for your engine," says Donahue. He points out that most commercially-identical engines require different gap settings when used in cars with differing equipment.

Spark plug manufacturers often offer plugs that are identical except for their factory-set gaps so you won't have to make big gap adjustments. "A ground-side electrode should be bent no more than about 10-12 thousandths of an inch," Donahue explains. "Beyond that, it can't be made parallel to the end of the center electrode, so the gap can't be accurately set." If you need to make more of an adjustment, he says you may have purchased the wrong plug.

Loosening a Spark Plug

A spark plug that resists removal may have been overtightened, installed crooked, or left in place too long. Whatever the case, though, it has to be taken out hopefully without destroying the threads in the engine meant to hold the plug in place.

Donahue suggests several strategies for removing stuck spark plugs. They can be used separately, or together.

First, apply firm, steady pressure with your spark plug wrench when trying to loosen the plug. After several seconds, it may start to budge.

"Once it's moving, don't just unscrew it all the way. For every full turn of your wrench, back off and screw the plug back in. A fraction of a turn—especially if you're still encountering some resistance. This helps free up any debris that may be caught on the threads. After a while, the plug should start unscrewing normally."

If you need to use an extension or a long spark plug wrench, be sure to keep it straight. "If you have the wrench cocked at all," Donahue explains, "no matter how hard you exert, some of the pressure won't get to the plug and it will make the job more difficult."

"If you've tried applying steady pressure and the plug still hasn't moved, try running the engine until it's warm. This tends to expand the plug hole, and should allow you to loosen the plug."

Another strategy Donahue suggests is spraying penetrating oil at the base of spark plug. "Give it time to soak in and lubricate the threads." Then, use the methods just described. You should be able to back out the plug," he adds.

In really severe cases, some professional technicians shoot air conditioner refrigerant at the base of the reluctant spark plug. This freezes the plug, causing it to contract, and often helping it come loose.

Once a spark plug comes out, you may discover that the threads in the engine are damaged. If this is the case, a "thread chaser tap" can restore mildly-damaged threads. For badly damaged threads, though, a "thread insert" must be installed. Do-it-yourself thread repair kits are available at most auto parts stores.

According to Donahue, prevention is the best defense against stuck spark plugs. "It's just a matter of being careful. Be sure to start plugs by hand when installing them, so they don't thread in crooked. As for tightening, gasket-seat plugs shouldn't be screwed in more than 1/12 turn past the point where they contact the engine; tapered-seat plugs shouldn't be torqued more than 1/16 turn. And be sure to replace spark plugs at least every two years. This helps prevent old plugs from getting stuck."

Taking the time to understand the job and using the right spark plugs for your engine can save you time and headaches. Rushing through the job will only mean trouble down the road.

Warriors kick in offense, top Duchesne

GCHS senior Mark Mendenhall (left) led the way with a hat trick in the Warriors' 3-1 victory Tuesday.

By some accounts, the Granite City Warriors played their best game of the season on Tuesday night, as they were able to finish what they started — kicking off a consistent seven-touch throughout the rest of the year. The Warriors played a strong game in the offensive third. Mark Mendenhall notched his first career hat trick as the Warriors defeated Duchesne 3-1.

It was a dandy way to begin play in the Tournament of Champions for the Warriors, who improved to 9-3-3 overall and 1-0 in Pool D play.

"THEY PLAYED LIKE the champions tonight," said Pioneers coach Dave Thurmer. "We had a little intensity tonight, but they just came out in the second half and barnstormed us."

"We're happy, and we'll take anything we can get," Granite City coach Jim O'Fallon said. "Our backfield play was strong, and Mark just had a big game for us. We beat a good club tonight, but we can beat get beat by any of the teams in our bracket."

We can't let up." It was a real breakthrough night for Mendenhall, who had scored just five goals before Tuesday.

"I'm pretty happy right now," Mendenhall said. "It felt good to get those goals. I haven't been playing very well lately, but now's the time to step up."

"I FELT MORE relaxed tonight; I was taking my time out there, and it just started happening for me and I had been missing things out there."

Mendenhall converted three classic goals. The first came with just nine seconds gone in the second half.

"We had just worked on that play (Monday) night," Baker said. "Fortunately, it worked for us."

After the second-half restart, the Warriors' Eric Edwards sent a long pass toward the Duchesne penalty area, where Mendenhall controlled the ball, beat a pair of defenders and rifled a shot past keeper Mike Sommer. Before the Pioneers knew what had hit them, it was 1-0 Granite City.

Still, after that quick goal, Duchesne came back just three minutes later. Mike Walperhorst made a determined run to the Warriors' box, took a slick pass from Brian Chappell and beat Jimmy Smith to tie the game at 1.

"It's playing in the rhythm of the game," Baker said. "They are patient at it, too."

The Warriors lost their poise, however, and struck again. Justin McMillian, who appears to be rounding into top form after injury problems, dribbled several yards and beat Sommer at the end. With his back to the goal, he found Mendenhall 12 yards out. This time Mendenhall used his left foot to beat Sommer used just under the crossbar.

Mendenhall finds mark in hat-trick performance

By Rob Raphael

There are many big shoes to fill this year for the Granite City soccer team. But Mark Mendenhall has the biggest ones.

Mendenhall, playing his first year as starting striker for the Warriors, has had to replace Shawn Petroski in the Warriors' lineup.

UNTIL TUESDAY, there may have been many who thought Mendenhall was no more than the Petroski legend. But against Duchesne in the Warriors' Tournament of Champions pool opening, he looked like Petroski reincarnated.

Mendenhall tallied three times to achieve his first-ever hat trick. He made the nice moves, got open and boomed his shots — with both feet — into the Duchesne net with deadly accuracy.

"DUCESNE HAD JUST beaten Vianney a few days ago, and we felt that they were the team to beat in our bracket."

The Warriors did just that, defeating Duchesne 3-1 behind Mendenhall's three goals, giving the Warriors a leg up in the Pool D standings of the tournament.

Granite City will advance to the semifinals of the tournament. (See MENDENHALL, Page 3B)

He and the Warriors got off to what could be considered a slow start for Granite City standards this season, but there is still a lot of soccer to be played — and if Mendenhall and GCHS can hold on the Duchesne game, they may silence the naysayers.

"I played backup to Shawn last year," Mendenhall said. "So I didn't see much playing time. Now that I've had the chance I've had to show what I can do, and until now it hadn't worked out very well."

GCHS eager to rebound at Howell

By Rob Raphael
Staff writer

Granite City will face another gridiron test this weekend when it travels to Francis Howell High School for a non-conference battle.

The Warriors are coming off a tough 40-0 loss to Edwardsville, which may be the best large-school team on this side of the river. The Warriors were hoping the Tigers might take them lightly, but it didn't happen.

"THEY ARE A good team, with a lot of speed," said GCHS coach Don Harris. "They're a fast compared to Calumet as far as their team speed. Their backs are so quick. They were up for us, and they didn't take us lightly."

Not only did Harris end up on the losing side, but he was tossed from the game with barely five minutes gone in the first quarter.

Harris said he objected to an intermission non-call by the officials on a fourth-down play by the Warriors, and he stepped onto the field — which is a "no-no" but rarely strictly enforced by officials.

Although Harris and the offi-

GCHS golfers end season; Martin reaches sectional

By Rob Raphael
Staff writer

The golf season is officially over for the Granite City Warriors, except David Martin.

Martin, who has been the Warriors' most consistent golfer the second half of the season, advanced to sectional competition by firing a 4-over-par 75 to place 10th in the Class 2A Westview Golf Course.

MARTIN'S SCORES WERE 83-82, and he will play in next Tuesday's Quincy Sectional at Westview Golf Course.

"David's just been our best golfer the last few weeks," Granite City coach Boon said. "He's done a great job, and he's made quite a turnaround in his game since last year and the beginning of this season."

Martin's mental game has been a big reason for his success, Chaney said. Martin will need his mental game in gear in order to compete at Quincy.

"Each step you take now, it gets harder," Chaney said.

Matt Foley tees off. GCHS finished 10th as a team in Tuesday's regional, where senior David Martin shot 75 to qualify for sectional play.

"The first level of players have been eliminated, so the competition will be that much tougher," Chaney said.

Belleville East won the regional team title with a score of 302, better than Collinsville's 308 and Belleville West's 319. O'Fallon shot 325 and will also advance to the Quincy Sectional. Granite City (345) placed 10th out of the 12 teams on hand.

THE TOP 15 individuals also advanced to Quincy. That list was led by East's Dan Johnson, who shot a 72. Next was Phil Caravia of West with a 73. Nathan Shiver (Collinsville), Phillip Phillips and Martin each shot a 75, but Shiver and Phillips both had better front-nine scores.

Other scores for Granite City included Pat Schaeffer (83) who just missed cut; Greg Carpenter (91), Dan Ray (96) and Pat Logan and Tim Harris, who each shot 99, rounded out the scoring for the Warriors.

Chaney said Martin has as good a chance as anyone at the sectional tournament next week.

"It's a crap shoot from this point," Chaney said. "If he swings as well as he did Tues-

Trivial matters

1. Belleville East and West, Collinsville and O'Fallon (Class AA) and Althoff and Freeburg (Class A) qualified for sectional play in boys golf Tuesday. Which two schools are the only ones from the Metro East to win a state golf title?

2. The Class AA and A boys state golf tournaments will be held in Bloomington this year. Where was state held from 1951-76, with only one interruption in 1962?

after he picked up a deflected pass from Josh Hickam, and the Warriors played defense the rest of the way.

"It's not the way we wanted to play, we were in here," Thurmer said. "But you have to give Granite City credit. They played a strong game."

"We're just trying to get the discipline, coming and going, consistency," Baker said. "We had a lot of guys step up tonight."

The Warriors are trying to make the tourney semifinals for the first time since 1990, when they won their last Illinois state title. They have made it back to the state tournament finals — in fact, since they have been in the tournament semis.

"This tournament is tougher than the state tournament," Baker said. "If we can do well here, it could make a big difference for us."

day, he has a real chance of advancing to state. If he shoots a 79, I think he might just make it, although it will be a little harder to shoot 75 at Westview than it was at Clinton Hill."

Martin, as well as the rest of the Warriors, visited Westview earlier this season. So Martin will be at least vaguely familiar with the course.

what was said. It was strange that the official initially reached behind for his flag, but he never threw it.

"I had to give Darren (DePew) the game plan (sheet), surprised him kind of caught him by surprise. He didn't usually work on the offense with me. It was a blow to the kids as well. I just hope we can put that behind us and move on what we have to do for the next three weeks."

Harris and the Warriors, as they have done all year, refuse to give up. Harris said his team is looking forward to winning its last three games and ending up 4-5 on the year.

"WE HAD A good practice (Wednesday), and the kids have kept their good attitude," Harris said. "Even after a tough loss on Saturday, our players showed up to practice on Saturday morning, and everyone is looking ahead, not behind."

Harris said after the blowout loss was hard to take, it did give the Warriors a chance

In other area golf, Althoff won the Class A Regional title Tuesday at the St. Clair Country Club. The Crusaders shot a team score of 315 to easily get by Freeport (343) and Staunton (358).

Mascoutah, which hosted Granite City's last regular-season tournament, won the Class AA Regional title at the County Club. The Indians fired a 319 as a team, getting past host Salem (328) and Mattoon (330).

to use some younger players, who might not see time otherwise. You don't like the lopsided losses, but with only nine games in a season, it's nice to have a chance to get some of those players in there and hopefully find some things out about them," Harris said.

THE REAL STANDOUT for the Warriors on Friday was Matt Koenig, who rushed 12 times for 130 yards and scored the first time a runner has gained 100 or more yards against the Tigers' defense.

"Matt did a great job, and he even added 14 tackles on defense," Harris said. "He's still getting his confidence back. He's a good player for us. In a close game, he could have been the difference; and I'd have liked to had him all year. I'd even be a better player by now."

As for Howell, Harris expects a powerful ground of linemen and backs to be right.

"We have scouted them, and they like to play power football," Harris said. "They're a good team, and we don't ever get a break in our schedule."

"BUT THE KIDS are positive, and we have some weapons. If we can get our players together, we have a shot. And then we have the two conference games left. We still have a chance to make some noise."

•Mendenhall

ment since 1990, the year before players from this year's senior class began their careers. Mendenhall said that fact has been in the back of the Warriors' minds.

We were talking about that the other day, that this was our last chance to do well in the tournament," Mendenhall said. "We haven't made it yet, and there are still a couple of teams that can play in our pool. We can't let that down at all. We have to just keep going like we did tonight."

MENDENHALL NOW HAS

eight goals, although he will never match Petroski's total of 43 last year. He said he realizes the greatness of Petroski, but he has to be one on the team that has had to step in to follow a great player.

"I know I had big shoes to fill, but it's the same for all of us," Mendenhall said. "We had got off to a slow start, but we played real well tonight. As a team, we're finishing a lot better."

Mendenhall was quiet to point out the nice feeds he got from his teammates on Tuesday.

"THE FIRST GOAL was something we had planned the night before," Mendenhall said.

"It's a set play where I just kind of hang around on the sideline and make a run down the box. I don't think any of them saw me until it was too late. "Eric (Edwards) gave me a great pass on that one, and Justin (McMillian) cut the ball right on my foot. Then Josh (Stanton) made a good play to get me the ball late in the game."

"When we have a bad game, it's usually because we're not playing as expected on the field. We played well tonight, and now we're finishing even better."

Mendenhall has also been running down hills in it. He limped off the field Tuesday after notching his second goal. Barely a minute after he came back on the field, he was setting the third Granite City goal behind the Duchesne keeper.

GOT KICKED right there on the corner kick," he said. "It was very painful, but scoring goals makes it feel better."

Granite City is scheduled to play today against Belleville East, and will conclude pool play Friday against Parkway South.
